WHAT YOUR TEAM WEARS IS PART OF WHAT YOU SELL.

A wardrobe is one of the first things a guest reads. It carries the identity of the place before anyone speaks, while still having to work through a full service.

Custom Wardrobe

WHAT A CUSTOM WARDROBE IS

▲ Planned role by role

Each position, its garments, fabrics, colours and accessories.

▲ Built to specification

Designed for one operation, not catalogue pieces with a logo added.

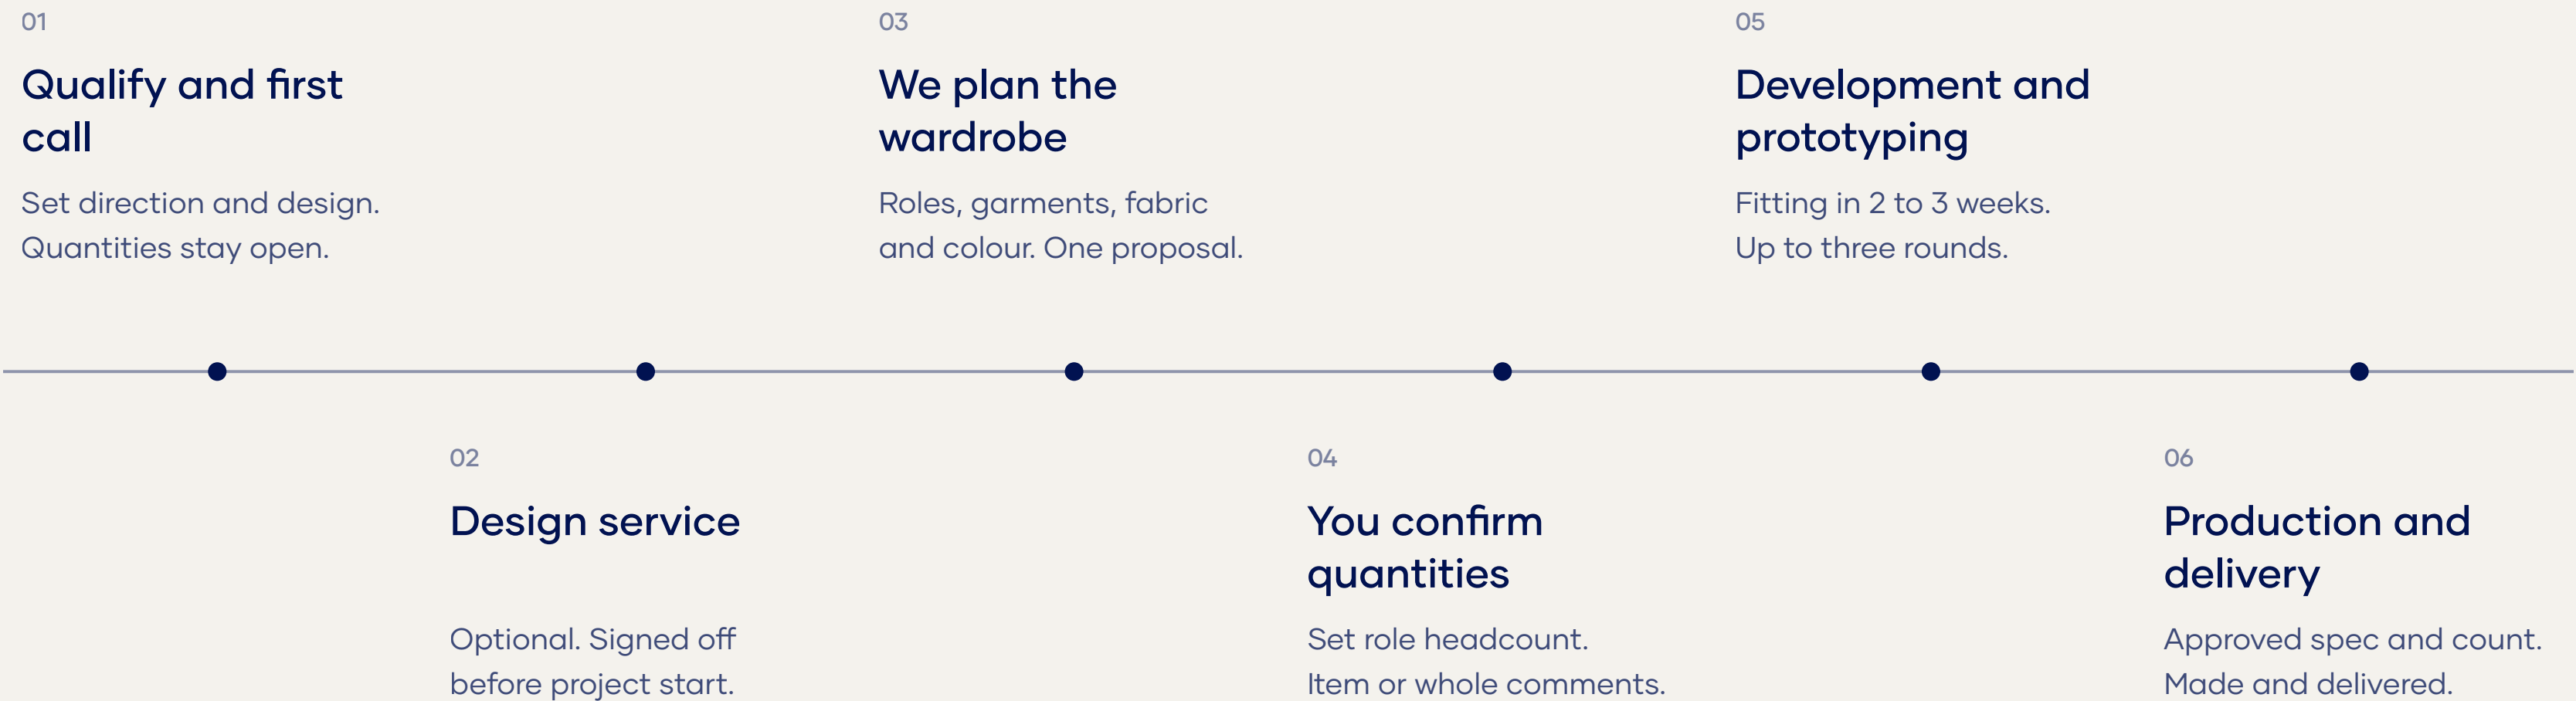

▲ Approved garment by garment

Prototypes are fitted and signed off one at a time, never as a lump.

▲ Kept on file

Specifications stay with us, so a reorder is a request and a quantity.

HOW A PROJECT ACTUALLY RUNS

Garments are added to a wardrobe by the studio. Ask for one in your own words and we come back with a proposal.

Continuity

WHAT WE KEEP ON FILE

Everything behind a finished wardrobe stays on record.

Approved specifications and patterns

Fabrics, their suppliers, minimums and lead times

Exact colours and accessories

Every garment as signed off

Reordering is a request, not a new project. Name the style and quantity, and we make it from the approved specification.

BUILT AROUND THE END CLIENT

Designed for the operation

Roles, movement and the space shape the wardrobe before individual garments do.

Approved one garment at a time

Each prototype has its own fitting and verdict, so one style never holds the rest hostage.

A stable reference

Approved specifications, materials and colours remain the point of reference over time.

One identity across every role

The wardrobe is mapped position by position, while the operation reads as one team.
